MODERN SYSTEM OF FARRIERY;

Comprehending every Ufeful Instruction for Equestrian Management in Sickness or in Health—Difeases are traced to their origin, and the Causes explained—Proper Modes of Prevention are particularly pointed out, and the direct Methods of Cure dearly confirmed—Occasional Observations are introduced upon the erroneous treatment and almost obsolute prescriptions of Gibson, Bracken, Bartlet, Ofmer, and otherwith General Directions for buying and selling, feeding, bleeding, purging, and getting into condition for their various purpoles, Horses of every Denomination—To which are now added applicable and experimental Remarks upon the proper Treatment of DRAUGHT HORSES, the Qualifications and dangerous Practice of Country Farriers, and the destructive Institution of Farmers Servants.

BY WILLIAM TAPLIN, SURGEON.

The superior excellence of this work is sufficiently demonstrated by its unprecedented circulation. The fale of six large impressions in 6 short a time after its original appearance, totally precludes the netestity of any other eulogium, and fixes an incontrovertible criterion of general approbation.

To this edition is annexed, a List of genuine and approved HORSE MEDICINES.

IRISHAND ENGLISH STATE LOTTERY OFFICE

No. 26. CORNHILL,

Opposite the Royal Exchange, London

THE TICKETS are fold, and divided into Halves, Quarters, Eighths, and Sixteenths, by

HORNSBY AND CO. Steek Brokers,

Appointed and licensed by Government, for the special purpose of selling and sharing Tickets in the present Irish State

Lottery, which will begin drawing on the 1 ath of November next, and in the Euglish State Lottery, which will begin drawing on the 2ad of February 1790.

And, for the certain security of their friends and customers, who purchase Shares at their Office, they beg leave to acquaint them, that they have adopted the following undeniable mode, which cannot fail of removing every idea of doubt with regard to the holder of a Share of a Ticket being equally safe and secure, in the payment of the prize, as the possession of a whole Ticket.

By the present act of Parliament, Horasby and Co. need policitor of a whole Ticket.

By the present act of Parliament, Horasby and Co. need only leave the Tickets shared by them in the hands of Government three days after they are drawn; but Hornshy and Co. positively, engage with the Public, That all Tickets shared by them shall remain in the hands of Government with whom they are now deposited, for the more ample security of the holder of the Share), until the payment of such Share or Shares is fully discharged by Hernshy and Co. It has been an invariable rule with the house of Hornshy and Co. to offer the very best security to their worthy friends and the Public, on whose patronage and support they rely. They likewise humbly affere the Public, That it shall be their constant study to give every testimony of regard for the innumerable savours received during a period of twenty-athree Lotteries; and they earhestly solicit their orders on the present occasion.

The large number of Capital Prizes fold, shared, and registered, by Hornshy and Co. are too sumerous to mention in this publication; they therefore inform the Public, for the more saily intelligence of the holders of Capital Prizes, bought at their Office, they shall follow their old sitvariable rule, by advertifing every Capital Prize, on the day it is drawn, and the whole at the conclusion of the drawing.

Correct Nomerical and Register Books are kept; and Tickets and Shares registered, at 6 d. per number.

All Shares fold at this Office will be stamped agreeable to act of Parliament.

REVOLUTION IN FRANCE. NATIONAL ASSEMBLY.

OCTOBER 6.

This day the National Affembly began to discuss the plan formerly presented by the Minuter of Finance. Having learned that it was the King's intention to repair to Paris, a deputation was appointed to wait on his Majesty, to assure him, "That the National Assembly would be very happy to adjourn to any place where his Majesty to hot to take up his abode." where his Majelty enote to take up his abode.

The Prefident, foon after this, returned, and told the Affembly, "That he had it in charge from the King to inform them, that his Majelty was much al-fected with this mark of attachment to his person." In the evening, M. Necker's plan of œconomical reform was again debated.

The patriotic donations received this day amount-

Orders were illued to the Treasurer, to defire all those who had subscribed to the necessities of the State, to make good their payments; also to direct an estimate to be made of the diamonds and trinkets, that they might be fold, and the amount lodged in the public treatury. The plate was at the same time ordered to be feat to the Mint.

A Committee of Naval Affairs, confilting of twelve

Members; was afterwards appointed.

Towards the close of this day's debate, the National Affembly were relieved from their folicitude, by an account of the kind reception which the Royal Family experienced on their arrival at Paris.

M. Brache moved, that the Allembly should hereafter meet at nine in the morning, and sit till three.

One of the Secretaries then announced a letter from two English Gentlemen, written in the English guage, in which these strangers begged leave to compliment the National Assembly, felicitate them on the freedom they had already acquired, and offer up their vows for the future liberty of France.
"Brave Englithmen," fays our French correspondent, " you shall be happy in the completion of your wishes! May we be hereafter attached to you by a perpetual alliance, founded on the most perfect friend-thip and efteem." ip and efteem."

The order of the day being called for, the 5th and

6th Articles of the Constitution were read and affent are without the least foundation in truth It is, however, more than probable, that had the Count d'Estaign, the Dukes de Guiche and Chatelet, and Count'de Lusignan, fallen within the clutches of the mob, at the height of the diffurbances, they would have been inflantly torn to pieces, as the names of these noblemen were particularly called for.

When the Hotel de Ville was plandered on Monday, the women, who were the first to force it open, found means, in the course of the short time they were there, to plunder the Treasury cheft of 200,000 livres—half of which, being in bills, were afterwards recovered; the reft was divided among the plun-

This forcible entrance was fortunately made fo early in the morning, that none of the Magistrates were affembled; they might otherwise have probably been conducted to the gallows, which had been e-rected very early in the morning, to be ready on any Occasion.

Though the National Guard was affembled before the Manison House in great numbers at the time it was forced, they did not offer to make the least refishance to the women, but suffered them to plunder, while they looked on as unconcerned spectators.

Besides this money, it was here the women surnish-de themselves with the sire-arms and weapons, with which they afterwards marched to Verfailles.

The Cabinet Ministers, who slept in the Palace, were not less alarmed at the found of the clinking of arms. The Garles du Corps at length forced the mob out of the Palice.

On Tuelday, a few of the Regiment of the King's Body Guard were taken prifiners, and immedia executed by the mob in the outer court of the Pa-lace, called la Cour der Ministres. Those within the Palace faved themselves partly by the intercession of Palace laved themselves partly by the intercession of the Marquis de la Fayette, but more by the request of the King, who appeared in the balcony of the Palace, and begged their forgiveness as a favour. The people could not resist up petition of their king; and soon after, a great part of the regiment appeared at the windows themselves, with the cockades of the National Guards in their caps. The people now ap-plauded them greatly from without, and they were invited, by the Marquis de la Favette, to come down and take the national oath as the feal of their pardon,

The mob then infifted to fee her Majetty, who appeared at the windows with the Dasphin in her arms, and M. Necker by her fide: She was much

The King and Royal Family entered Paris in great state. The procession, if it may be so called, latted for several hours,—the rabble, women, and part of the foldiery, preceding the King, two or three hours before his arrival. The Royal Family's carriages were furrounded by feveral hundred troops; and, on entering Paris, the Mayor congratulated the King on his arrival among them; to which his Majefty re-plied, " It is always with pleafure and confidence, I plied, "It is always with pleature and community fee myfelf furrounded by the good inhabitants of my city of Paris. On being arrived at the Hotel de Ville, the Mayor repeated his Majefty's words to the Magistrates, but forgot to mention the words " with confidence," on which the King reminded him of them. The Mayor then very nearly observed, "Gentlemen, You are far more happy in hearing those words from his Ma-jelty's own lips, than you could be in my repetition of them."

Monday evening, nineteen persons were interred at the Church of Notre Dame, who fell victims to the tumult the day before, viz. feven Gardes du Corps, fix Gardes Nationales, one woman, and five citizens of different ranks.

This faved the Life Guards; for had the fire with grupe once begue, it would have been almost morally impossible that any one of these gallant teliows should

AUSTRIAN NETHERLANDS.

Our correspondent at Brussels prepares us for in-telligence of the most awful nature in a few days.— The last edict of the Emperor, which enjoined all those who had emigrated to return in fifteen days, under the pains of banishment and confifcation, and decouncing the penalty of death against all who should infligate or abet them, has produced no effect. The number of patriots affembled on the frontiers of Liege, and of Dutch Brabant, are reported; by the most moderate accounts, to be 20,000; and after affecting so long to disperse them, the Imperial Minitters have at length given a fignal proof that con-tempt is not the precise emotion that guides them most powerfully. General Schreid, an officer of great reputation, marched out of Bruffels on the morning the 9th, at the head of a body of 9000 men, with fix pieces of cannon, towards the Liege frontier, where he is to be joined by detachments from the other garrifons. That the object of this march was an upprehended eruption of the exiled Brabancons, is obvious; an action with fo numerous a body, guided by indigence, and inflamed by despair, will doubtless b

Dalton, a foldier of forene, who knows no coun try but a camp, and recognizes no law but his fword, will, it is believed, in the event of a revolt at Bruffels, not hefitate to lay that city in alhes, and one Austrian Princess may, perhaps, be amused with scenes in the capital of the Netherlands, of which another was defrauded in Paris.

The motions of the Pruffian army,—the numbers of Dutch troops ordered to the frontiers of Brabant, and the naval armament of Holland, still continue to give rife to the most various conjectures. A very general oninion prevails, that the object of the Dutch army, is the recovery of the barrier towns which the Emperor feized in 1782. By that usurpation, which they fav was an infraction of the Barrier Treaty of 1709, from which the House of Austria derived their prefent right to the Netherlands, the Emperor for feited de jure the fovereignty of these provinces. Should the allied powers, under the fanction of this principle, avail themselves of the ambarrassment of the Emperor, and the temporary palfy of the French power, and incorporate Brabant and Flanders with Holland, such an accession would give the triple al-liance the most decided ascendant in the politics of Europe.

The report, apparently fabricated in England, of a demand made by the King of Pruffia on the States of Holland for thirty millions, has been contradicted in the most folemn and authoritative manner, in the name of the Court of Berlin, and is supposed by some to have originated with some partizans of the house of Austria, who, to intimidate and dispirit the Brabancons, forged this misunderstanding between the allied powers from whom they expected aid.

Other reports fay, that the naval armament of Hol-land is delined to the affiliance of Sweden, and the restoration of the equilibrium on the Baltic; and

From the time of his Catholic Majefty's accession to the throne, his public entry into the capital of his dominions had been deferred till the happy delivery of the Queen. #### LONDON .- OCTOBER 14.

The return to town of the Lord Chancellor was sudden, and full three weeks sooner than the business of the Court of Chancery actually required. To account for this, it is said, that the affairs of France have lately become the subject of serious deliberation in the Cabinet; and that his Lordship received a special fummons to give his attendance thereon. How far it may be prudent or politic for this country fingly to interfere in their civil broils, we will not at-tempt to fay; but the transactions in France certainly feem to be verging to that criffs, which may ren-der them a general concern to the Potentates of

The people are so fearful of a surprise, that the palace has every appearance of a citadel; a very numerous guard of the burghers do regular duty every two hours. More than 400 cannon are placed about the avenues of the Royal refidence, though rather after the manner of a fiege, than for defence, the guns being pointed towards the

In support of the Fresbytery of Ayr, it was urged with spirit and ability, that the recommendation of the last Assambly, transmitted to them, called upon them to keep one object in their eye—the preservation of purity of doctrine, and the authority of the shandards of this charch.

The defenders of the Presbytery wished to impress on the nunds of the Synod, that the cause brought under their review was of the utmost importance and magnitude, and that it involved consequences of the most public nature.
